

PODS Greenville is proud to support the 34th Annual Mighty Moo Festival in historic Cowpens, S.C. In 1976, the Cowpens Bicentennial Committee decided that the next town festival would be called the Mighty Moo Festival, in honor of former crewmen of the USS Cowpens WWII aircraft carrier. On July 2, 1977, one crewman, Mr. O.J. Simpson of Charleston, S.C., attended that festival. About 1,500 visitors turned out for the rides, flea market, and Colonial experiences of that first festival. By 1982, the number of former crewmen attending the festival had risen to over 115. In recent years, the public attendance has swelled to over several thousand during the four-day event. Mr. Carswell Wynne, a veteran of the USS Cowpens CVL 25 and regular attendee of the Mighty Moo Festival says, "Words can't explain the joy we have when coming to The Mighty Moo Festival, The Battle Ground and being with our families that have adopted us." The festival has street dances, a golf tournament, an arts & crafts sale, pageants, baseball games, reunions, and a parade that honors the former crewmen of both the USS Cowpens CVL 25, and the current USS Cowpens CG 63. The yearly festival is held on the third weekend of June.

PODS-brand containers were utilized for onsite storage of supplies and vendor space during the 4-day event. James Caggiano (MMF Event Coordinator) said, "We would like to thank PODS for providing two units for the Mighty Moo Festival to use during our annual festival. We honor our USS Cowpens Veterans and with PODS help this year, we were able to improve the festival. Thanks again and we hope you become a long time sponsor of our festival."
