

PODS Provides Storage For Local Atlanta Beer Festival

The Great Atlanta Beer Fest at Turner Field was held on Saturday October 8, 2011. Over 2,500 people came out to enjoy the perfect weather, great craft beers, live music including the Braves marching band, college football on the huge TV, and tasty ballpark food. Turner Field provided a wonderful setting for the event, and the PODS® storage container was a huge help providing temporary storage for beer fest supplies. Supplies held in the container included tables, chairs, tents, keg tubs, and of course bottled beer.

Michael DiLonardo, Director of Operations for the Atlanta Beer Festival stated, "The PODS unit was a tremendous help to the logistics of our event. Our event space was very expansive and it was a huge benefit to have a storage unit right in the middle of the action."

"We like to support all kinds of events in our community by providing PODS® storage containers when we can," says Ed McCrady, owner of PODS Atlanta. "We are glad it can support events where people in our community can come together in a festive environment and have fun."

About Atlanta Beer Festivals

Atlanta Beer Festivals concepts, plans, and produces beer festivals in Atlanta, GA throughout the year. The company started with a small event in the back parking lot of a restaurant with a couple hundred people sampling a few dozen beers. It has since grown to serve thousands of attendees over one hundred beers per event. They strive to introduce new, local beers as well as appreciate the standard classics in a fun, social atmosphere. Currently, Atlanta Beer Festivals conducts the Atlanta Summer Beer Fest, the Atlanta Winter Beer Fest, the Great Atlanta Beer Fest at Turner Field, and Boos and Brews Halloween party at Sweetwater Brewery.
